

HE09I Presentation of Assessed Work.

- 1.0 This annex will outline how the majority of written elements for assessment must be presented to the internal examiners of TEC Partnership delivered higher education, regardless of awarding body.
- 2.0 It is important that students present academic work in way that can be clearly understood and marked by a variety of examiners across TEC Partnership.
- 3.0 Written work must be presented using Calibri Font, Size 12, 1.5 line spaced. Headings can be up to size 16. Work must be left aligned using the Normal template available in word.
- 4.0 All work must be submitted using the correct front cover sheet, that has had the correct information provided by the module tutor. Students must use their student number in the header, and provide a page number in the footer.
- 5.0 All work should be saved in the following format Student number_assessment_module i.e. 600099 Essay StudySkills.docx. This helps to maintain anonymity during assessment marking.
- 6.0 The logo of TEC Partnership and, where relevant, the awarding body can appear on the standardised cover sheet for Dissertations and other research projects. Use of other logos and branding on cover sheets is forbidden.
- 7.0 Harvard referencing is the standard referencing system used in TEC Partnership assignments. Where a subject area has deviated from using Harvard (for example, APA), this must be clearly stated in Programme and Module Handbooks. Further guidance is available from the Academic Achievement Service.
- 8.0 All work must be submitted through Turnitin and feedback through Turnitin. Failure to do so may result in academic misconduct or maladministration proceedings being started.
- 9.0 Students are advised to make themselves aware of the Overlength and Late submission penalties as laid out in HE09 Assessment of Students.

The Harvard Style of Referencing

The basic idea of the Harvard Style is to:

- > Use citations (a partial reference) in the text.
- List all references in full at the end of an assignment.

Use Citations in the Text

In the text of your assignment, you give a partial reference (called a citation). This is the last name of the author, followed by the year of publication. If you do not have the author's name, you use the name of an organisation, newspaper, journal, or whatever the main source is.

Citing the source as you write involves giving a partial or shortened reference (last name of author(s) and year of publication) in the main body of your written assignment and then giving full details of the source in full at the end of the assignment in a 'References' or 'Bibliography' section. You can abbreviate lengthy organisational names; see the example below.

Example:

Citations

The purpose of this assignment is to show common elements of the Harvard style of referencing in the University Centre Grimby. It is not intended to be an example of good quality academic writing, and indeed may not make sense in general, but it should show you how citations and a reference list are formed in the Harvard style of referencing (Cameron, 2021). If you include a direct quotation from a book you have read" (Giddens and Sutton, 2021, p.117) you should include the relevant page number.

You do not always have to write the author and year in brackets. Cameron (2021) explains that if the author's name occurs naturally in the text then the year follows it in brackets. If there are two authors you should include both of them in the citation (Levine and Munsch, 2021). If there are three or more authors you do not have to list all of the names in the citation but you should include them all in the reference list (Robbins et al., 2020). The reference list should appear at the end of your assignment and be in alphabetical order based on the first author's surname (Bruen, 2022) rather than the order in which they appear in your assignment (Papagiannis, 2022). If you are using a citation for a second time you do not need to include it twice in the reference list (Cameron, 2021).

Referencing an academic journal that you find online requires more information in the reference list but uses the same format for citing as other sources (Tesseur, 2022). If referencing a source from a library database you say from which database you found it (Mayombe, 2021).

List References in Full at the End of an Assignment

In the References and Bibliography section at the end of an assignment the basic format for listing references in the Harvard Style is as follows:

- 1. Start with the last name(s), followed by the initials of the author(s), contributor, editor, producer or speaker. If you do not have the name of an author, start with the name of the originator. This can be an organisation name, e.g. BBC, or the name of a website, e.g. NHS.
- 2. This is followed by the year of publication; put this in brackets. This should be easy to find on printed documents. However, in some older books, it may be missing. In this event, put (n.d). With Internet sources, look for a year the item was placed on the site, or in the absence of this when the site was last updated (the year in question), or if unsuccessful with either of these two, the year you looked at the information.
- 3. This is followed by the title of the source. The main source is usually emphasised in some way, e.g. underlined or in italics. The main source would be, for example, the title of a book, the name of the magazine, journal or newspaper, Internet site, broadcast production source, video or CD-ROM etc. Whichever mode of emphasis you choose underlining or italics, keep it consistent throughout.
- 4. If your source is a chapter from an edited book, you then give the name or names of the editors of the book, followed by the title of the edited book.
- 5. In most printed items you would give details of the Location and publisher. You first give the name of the town or city where the source was published, followed by the name of the publisher.
- 6. In the case of a journal article, you finish with the reference details of volume, edition/issue number (if shown) of the journal and the page numbers of where the article can be found.

(There may be variations on this general sequence for some sources; seek guidance from the Academic Achievement Service).

At the end of the assignment, the references are given in alphabetical order, by last name of the author(s), in full:
